

The Dayton Literary Peace Prize Foundation (DLPP) was established to advance peace through literature. The DLPP Foundation supports those who write, publish, read and share works of fiction and nonfiction that promote peace and understanding.

Goals:

- * To promote peace by encouraging people to read, share, and appreciate literary works about peace,
- * To promote the recognition of literature as a force in achieving peace and
- * To establish prizes to recognize writers and the role their books play in educating people about peace.

The DLPP Winners listed below are available for loan through our Abrams Chatfield Peace Library.
